The name Tex Beneke is inevitably linked to that of Glenn Miller, despite the fact that Beneke outlived Miller by over a half-century. As the most popular member of Miller's pre-World War II orchestra, featured on songs such as "Chattanooga Choo Choo" and "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," Beneke became a major fixture in the popular culture of the period, and following Miller's death in ...

Tex Beneke was born in Texas. He joined the Glenn Miller Orchestra in 1938 as a tenor saxophonist. He quickly became a star with the orchestra with his easy going manner, casual sounding voice and mellifluous saxophone playing. One night while riding to a gig with Glenn Miller in a car, they discussed tunes and Tex suggested a song he knew called "Ida". He sang it to Miller and Miller is ...

Tex led the band until 1950, but eventually rebelled against the strict managerial insistence on playing Miller's music exactly as the trombonist conceived it. He broke his relationship with the estate to form his own band and toured under the banner "Tex Beneke and His Orchestra Playing the Music Made Famous by Glenn Miller". With this ensemble Beneke introduced some of his own ideas ...
